

{CitiBlocs} Review

I was given the amazing opportunity to review a company called, CitiBlocs, this week. I knew my kids would be interested because they love to build things. Whether it is a fort with my couch pillows or some building blocks or Lincoln logs. Watching their creativity come alive is exactly what every parent wants. CitiBlocs are perfectly designed with New Zealand Pine. This is so weird and funny at the same time. When my husband was opening these up for the kids to play with he immediately picked up the block and smelled it and looked at it and said "This is Pine!" "This has to be from New Zealand". I was just like, whatever..they look fun! When I was reading the paperwork for it this morning though there it was stated..pine from New Zealand. My son Kaleb jumped right into action with playing, building, and imagining. Wild horses couldn't have taken him from those blocks. He is 7 years old and this is a great age for this play. These can be fun for kids from preschool age to adults. I received the 52 piece block set. It values at $14.95 at Glamma Toys. These blocks are all the same size so nothing gets in the way. If you wish to advance you can buy 200, 300, 500, 800 & even 1000 piece block sets. CitiBlocs were even featured on the Today Show, NBC. "Toys That Make Learning Fun"

Kaleb really got creative and he left the CitiBloc's in place and said NO ONE, not even daddy is to touch them. He will build something great today after school. I had strict orders today!
